NEWS FROM MARION C. PRICE TRUST FUND

Immunizations are not just for children. Protection from some childhood vaccines can wear off over time. You may also be at risk for vaccine-preventable disease due to your age, job, lifestyle, travel or health conditions. As we get older, our immune systems tend to weaken over time, putting us at higher risk for certain diseases.

All adults need immunizations to help them prevent getting and spreading serious diseases that could result in poor health, missed work, medical bills and not being able to care for family.

All adults need a seasonal flu vaccine every year. Flu vaccine is especially important for people with chronic health conditions, pregnant women and older adults.

There are currently two types of pneumococcal vaccines: PCV13 and PPSV23. There are more than 90 types of pneumococcal bacteria. PCV13 protects against 13 types and PPSV23 protects against 23 types. Both vaccines provide protection against illnesses like meningitis (infection of the covering of the brain and spinal cord) and bacteremia (blood infection) and pneumonia (lung disease). After age 65 it is recommended that either the PCV13 or the PPSV23 be given followed by the other in at least one year.

Every adult should get the Tdap vaccine if they did not receive it as an adolescent to protect against pertussis (whooping cough) and then a Td (tetanus, diphtheria) booster shot every 10 years.

The shingle vaccine is recommended for adults 60 years and older. Shingles is a painful skin rash that develops on one side of the face or body. The shingles vaccine reduces the risk of developing shingles and the long-term pain that can follow. Anyone 60 years or older should get the shingles vaccine, regardless of whether they recall having had chickenpox, which is caused by the same virus as shingles. Protection with the shingles vaccine lasts about 5 years.

Please discuss these vaccines with your primary care physician for the best protection plan for you.

Narcan Nasal Spray is indicated for the emergency treatment of a known or suspected opioid overdose as manifested by respiratory and/or central nervous system depression. It is intended for immediate administration as emergency therapy but is NOT a substitute for emergency medical care. 911 must be called immediately if an overdose is suspected.

It is supplied in a single spray device. The recommended initial dose of Narcan Nasal Spray in adults and pediatric patients is one spray delivered into one nostril.

A Narcan Nasal Spray is located in the AED cabinet at the base of the parish hall steps in Trinity. The Narcan Nasal Spray can be obtained from the local pharmacies at a minimal cost without a prescription.
